News from Great Brook Village

Everyone here at the village is busy getting ready for Christmas and I must say each year it gets a little harder to do the shopping. I don't know about the rest of the town, but here in the village what our grandchildren want is so far advanced that we don't even know what they are talking about.

On December 3rd one of our residents put out a display of food at the clubhouse from "Tastefully Simple". This was done for us to sample as he sells this product. It was really quite a display and was very tasty. As I have stated before we here at the village like to eat and get together.

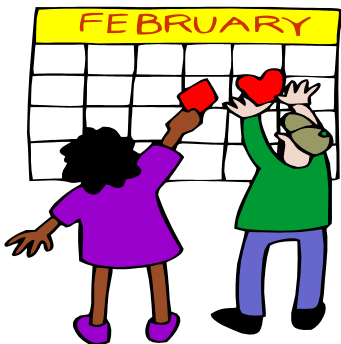

On December 14th we had two special guests, Christine Fogg from AARP, and our very own Captain Lewandoski of the Belmont Police Department. They came to inform us about all the scams that are being used and to tell us how to prevent being scammed. It sure opens our eyes. We had a real good turnout for this event also. Usually at our coffees we have doughnuts but Barbara Madden put out quite a spread to go with the doughnuts. She is another one of our real good cooks.

On December 16th we here at the village held our annual Christmas Party at the clubhouse. Again we had a real good turnout. Every one bought snacks to share and then we had a Yankee Swap. This year we had a special elf name Sammy helping out with all the gift and exchanges. The girls who did all the decorating of the clubhouse did an excellent job and that made the party even more festive.

So far we have been lucky not to have much snow, but it sure makes you wonder what is coming.

Until next month

Fire Department

The Members of the Belmont Fire Department want to remind all residents and business of the importance of clearly displaying the 911 approved addresses on your residence or business. During an emergency response being able to quickly identify and locate the correct address can mean the difference between a positive and a negative outcome. The Town of Belmont 911 addressing ordinance states the following:

New and existing buildings shall have approved address numbers, building numbers, or approved building identification placed in a position to be plainly legible and visible from the street or road fronting the property.

All street numbers displayed on primary buildings or property shall be at least three (3) inches in height. The size of numbers placed on mailboxes shall be in accordance with U.S. Postal Service requirements. All street numbers displayed on primary buildings on property shall be of a contrasting color to the means of support Correctly displaying your building address will help your Fire and Police personnel when they are responding to your request for assistance. If you are unsure of the requirements please contact us and we will be happy to assist you.

New Engine Undergoes Final Inspection

Deputy Chief McCarty traveled to Florida the week before Christmas to complete a final inspection on your new fire engine. Engine one will replace a 1989 Pierce pumper. The new engine is designed to function as a rescue pumper. This will allow us to function more efficiently when responding to motor vehicle accidents and other type of rescue calls. The truck should be delivered to our dealer in Vermont by the first of the year. The dealer will install our Hurst rescue tools and reels along with a few other specialty items. We anticipate the engine will be in service by the end of January.

- Three of the five Zoning Ordinance amendments to be included on the March 13th ballot are discussed below.
 - Regulate as structures small building components that are placed abutting each other to form a structure. Currently anything "easily moveable by one unassisted individual" is not regulated as a structure. This amendment would regulate a grouping of such items that are placed to create a single unit. For example, a small platform that can be picked up and moved by one unassisted individual will still not be regulated. However, several such platforms placed together to form a larger deck would be regulated.
 - Regulate outdoor wood-fired boilers, restricting non-EPA Phase II boilers from the Village and Residential Single and Multi-Family Zones. Currently all outdoor wood-fired boilers are allowed in all zones. Under this amendment, the older-style boilers that do not meet the EPA standards for smoke emission will not be allowed in the more densely populated zones (Village, Single & Multi-Family Zones). They will be permitted only in the Rural, Commercial and Industrial Zones. Newer EPA certified boilers will continue to be allowed in all zones.
 - Limit the height of building mounted signs to the maximum roof-line height of the structure to which the sign is mounted. Currently building-mounted signs can be up to 45' in height. In comparison free-standing signs are limited to 25' in height. This amendment will limit new building mounted signs to the maximum roof-line height of the building on which they are mounted.

The remaining two amendments will be discussed in the February newsletter. The full text is available on our webpage and in the Land Use Office.

GOOD FORESTRY IN THE GRANITE STATE: RECOMMENDED VOLUNTARY FOREST MANAGEMENT PRACTICES FOR NEW HAMPSHIRE

In December 2010, The New Hampshire Department of Resources and Economic Development, Division of Forests and Lands published the second edition of "Good Forestry in the Granite State: Recommended Voluntary Forest Management Practices for New Hampshire" to carry out its statutory responsibility (RSA 227-I:4). This updated guide gives an overview of commonly accepted forest management techniques to promote healthy woodlands. It is well worth noting at the outset as one peruses this guide, that this is a voluntary practices guide and not a regulatory manual. The topics covered are goal-oriented methods to achieve a healthy forest for profit, wildlife habitat, clean water, and recreation.

The guide is divided into eight sections:

1. Getting Started - Describes how to begin a forestry management program and how to set goals for successful outcomes. It also delves into long-term stewardship of forest lands and family legacies.
2. Silviculture - The practice of controlling the establishment, growth, composition, health, and quality of forests to meet diverse needs and values. There are descriptions of the dominant forest types and structures in NH. Forest management - how to plan for desired forest growth is also covered.
3. Timber Harvesting - How does one plan for and execute a successful timber cut? How does one maintain forest ascetics during and after a cut? What methods are used to maintain soil function?

4. Water Resources - Healthy forests are vital to healthy water resources. Protection of lakes, rivers and wetlands are an integral part of any timber harvest.
5. Forest Health - Threats to forest health, especially from introduced species of insects and plants and improper logging, are discussed along with less preventable events like wind and ice damage. This topic hits especially close to home as the Conservation Commission deals with the non-native, invasive Glossy Buckthorn on a prime parcel of conservation land.
6. Wildlife Habitat - One can't think of forests without also thinking of all of the creatures that live there. Using a variety of forest management techniques encourages desired species in woodland.
7. Sensitive Areas - Are those areas typified by uncommon or rare landscapes. Seeps, vernal pools, pine barrens and old-growth forests are examples. Historic homestead sites are also included here.
8. Forest Products - Both timber products (saw logs, cord wood, and bio-mass) and non-timber products (maple syrup, honey, nuts and berries, and mushrooms and non-woody plants) are products of the forest. Emerging markets may be forests as open lands and carbon sequestration.

While its focus is definitely geared toward the wood lot owner, others who enjoy New Hampshire's forest lands will find this an interesting read.

Public Library

Governance of the Library (or the Buck Stops Here)

A board of Library Trustees is entrusted, in the case of many towns including Belmont, with the sole custody of the Library. The Director, hired by this board, provides day-to-day coverage and management. According to New Hampshire RSA 202-A, the board of Trustees is the single governing body of the library. There are many RSAs or laws that establish how the Library is to serve the community and there are many guidelines that are often adopted as policy and procedure. The board of Trustees draft and adopt policies as needed.

Sometimes when people come into Belmont Public Library for the first time, they comment on how small (the word "tiny" was recently used) the Library is. In spite of limited space, the Library provides services that reach far beyond the walls. Also, in spite of its size, the Library must follow certain Laws (RSAs) that are established for all libraries governing expenditure of funds, requirements for borrowing materials purchased by tax dollars, and safety and security issues. These policies are available on request at the Library. Rules are posted and also in print and can be reviewed on request. Any resident with a question or complaint is welcome to set up a time to meet with the Director and a member of the board of Trustees. Library Staff all try to be fair and consistent in all aspects of assisting the public.

It is interesting that occasionally someone coming into the Library feels that because of the Library's size, there is no need to have rules to govern the management of the collection, or record keeping. Policies on providing proper identification, residency, and fines are policies that have been written specifically for management of the collection and holdings. Library cards and ID numbers issued provide a means of controlling the circulation and whereabouts of materials. Each borrower must have a card (with an ID number). Each library account is private and confidential. Cards are non-transferrable. Library staff may not discriminate and randomly decide when or whether to follow policies and procedures: they must apply to all borrowers at all times. Exceptions are a form of discrimination which is against the philosophy and practice of libraries in general. "Tiny" or not, Belmont Public Library strives to be an access point for the literature, science, history, thoughts, and dreams of our world and universe, expanding knowledge, introducing ideas, and inspiring creativity.

Highlighting the Helpers-Belmont's Volunteers

In an attempt to bring our community together I thought it would be nice to put the spotlight on some of our selfless volunteers. This month we will learn about Wallace Rhodes.

Interviewed by: Tracey Russo

Picture Provided by: Brenda Paquette

Wallace Rhodes graduated from Belmont High School (now center part of Belmont Middle School) in 1953 in a class of nine students. He is the only child of Ira and Viola Rhodes. Viola ran the local telephone office when he was young and his father worked for the New Hampshire Department of Transportation. After graduation Wallace went to UNH majoring in Business Administration, after which he went to work for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in New York City. He stayed there until 1961 when he came back to Belmont and went to work for the New Hampshire Banking Department where he remained for the next 30 years.

In his free time Wallace enjoys researching history. He says he spent four years researching the Rhodes family and traced them to eastern France. The family arrived in New York City on October 25, 1852 and initially were farmers in Cape Vincent, New York at the eastern end of Lake Ontario. The family later came to Portsmouth, New Hampshire and his grandparents came to Belmont in the 1920's. Even though he traces these ancestors to France his heritage is primarily English with several ancestors residing in Belmont in the early 1800's. A nearly lifetime pastime has been researching Belmont history with his most recent endeavor being the mills along the Tioga River. He claims that at one time there were three or more dams, depending on the time frame, located in Belmont Village each powering mills. He is still trying to find the exact location of the Fellows sawmill which was on the opposite side of the river from the recently created Penstock Park.

Five years ago Wallace built a new home at the top of Church Hill on land that was inherited by his great great grandmother in 1847 from her second husband. He shares the home with three other friends in addition to Sam his Lhasa apso dog.

Wallace has been involved in many community events including a grass roots effort to save the Belmont Mill from demolition in 1995. Rhodes says the effort was helped by many people I had never known or heard of who came to our aid. Special help was provided to us by Plan New Hampshire who held a charrette in January 1996. He says that at the time he had never heard of a charrette. All the effort paid off and the mill was saved. In June of 2010 a second charrette by the same group helped spur recent village revitalization efforts. He has also served as Library Trustee and Budget Committee member and is currently a member of the Village Revitalization Committee. One of his long time interests has been the Belmont Historical Society of which he is a charter member and of which he has served as President several times. The Historical Society owns the Province Road Meeting House on Route 107 and its restoration is one of Wallace's priorities for 2012.

When asked about revitalizing the downtown Wallace expressed enthusiasm saying that Belmont is on its way up and is overcoming a lack of planning and community pride dating from the 1950's to the 1990's. He is hoping the citizens will support the effort and see the benefit to the entire town as well as the village area. My roots are pretty deep in Belmont and I can trace my heritage to several families including Piper, Kilborn, Fuller, and Dearborn. If anyone has information or questions about Belmont history Wallace can be reached at wally111@myfairpoint.net

Police Department

We get many questions about our job and the law. A lot of times people will tell you what they "know" when in reality, they are passing along urban legend or inaccuracies. This article and some of our future articles will answer some of those burning questions that we receive.

1. If I find money in a store or on a sidewalk can I keep it? -

There is actually a law called Theft of Lost or Mislaid Property. In essence, this law says that if you obtain property of another which you know to have been lost or mislaid, or delivered under a mistake as to the identity of the recipient or as to the nature or amount of the property, without taking reasonable measures to return the same to the owner, and the purpose is to deprive the owner, that is a crime. The old adage, "Finders keepers" does not really apply in the State of New Hampshire.

If you find property of value, you can always turn it into the police department and all non-contraband abandoned or lost personal property which has a value of $250 or more and which has been held in a police department property room for a period of at least 180 days, or which has a value of less than $250 and has been held for a period of at least 90 days, may be disposed of by the police department by returning it to the finder, if known.

2. Is it ok if I drive 5 mph over the speed limit, will I get stopped? -

While it is unusual that someone will get stopped for traveling 5 miles over the posted speed limit, you could very well get stopped for driving over the posted speed limit and receive a warning or even a summons. You may even receive our friendly "visual" warning, which is when the officer will flip their blue lights on and off, just to let you know you may be going a bit fast. The first sentence of the speeding law says that "No person shall drive a vehicle on a way at a speed greater than is reasonable and prudent under the conditions and having regard to the actual and potential hazards then existing." So the officer takes many things into consideration such as time of day, weather and road conditions, area that a person is stopped and yes, even has the person been stopped before and given a warning by us in the past.
